BACKGROUND

Nick Miller started young as an actor, with recurring television and theatre roles often running parallel to his regular school and studies. Further television guest roles during University study eventually gave way to broader exposure on international hit show "The Tribe". Nick has appeared in many short films, and counts working with James Cameron on "Avatar" as a career highlight. Nick has studied acting at Auckland University, NIDA and at The Actors Pulse in Australia. Nick also works as a commercial director, and is a professional club DJ with years of experience.
